The Universal Laws

Quick Reference Guide

Many people eventually come to understand that happiness only comes from within. No amount of success or abundance of any form will create happiness if you don't build the proper emotional foundation and develop that source of happiness from within. With just a little reflection and the learning of a few ideas, it is easy to develop and appreciate this vital truth about life. The Universal Laws state these ideas in terms we all can understand and work with.

Practicing these laws daily will simplify your life and empower you to create a life of personal success and happiness.

THE LAW OF VIBRATION: Everything is in a state of vibration. Things of one vibrational frequency are attracted to other things in that same frequency. Emotions are created by thoughts of a similar vibration; positive thoughts create positive emotions.

THE LAW OF RELATIVITY: Nothing is either good or bad until you compare it to something else. When you experience a bad situation, compare it to something that could be worse and yours will appear relatively more positive.

THE LAW OF POLARITY: With every good comes an equal and opposite bad. A good experience comes at a cost; a negative experience lays the foundation for a better one in the future.

THE LAW OF CAUSE AND EFFECT: Every effect is predicated on a specific cause. If you don't like the effect, change the cause by changing your thoughts, visions or actions and you will effect a different result. The vibration you put out affects the vibration you receive; when you are happy and positive with others you effect the same emotions in them.

THE LAW OF RHYTHM: Life resides in a constant state of change, full of peaks and valleys. Just as the sun rises and sets, and the tides roll in and roll away, challenges and opportunies also come and go. Hard times will not endure forever; good times will pass as surely as they arrived.

THE LAW OF GENDER: The seeds you plant today, both positive and negative, won't necessarily bear fruit tomorrow, but will always come to fruition at some point down the line. The greatest rewards have the longest gestation period.

THE LAW OF TRANSMUTATION OF ENERGY: Physical and emotional energy cannot be destroyed but can change form. Negative emotional energy can inspire positive actions; desperation and disgust can provide seeds for the greatest triumphs and success. Untempered joy and abundance can lead to interference, cruelty and greed.

Identifying these laws at play in your own life will give you the freedom of making choices for yourself, will help simplify your life, and will empower you to create a life of greater personal success and happiness.
